FOURTH OF JULY IN NEWPORT.

(Celebrated on Saturday the 3d.)

93d ANNIVERSARY OF INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Independence day was celebrated in Newport this year with so great éclat, and gave such unbounded satisfaction to its citizens as well as to the thousands of visitors from abroad who came to enjoy the day, that we deem it worthy a permanent record in the Directory. It was handsomely celebrated; and the "oldest inhabitant" (of whom there are a good many in Newport) declares he never witnessed such a "4th" as this one. The city was gayly decorated with flags and presented a very pretty appearance. A general holiday was, of course, observed, and the inhabitants heartily participated in the display, which was most creditable to the city. A national salute was fired at sunrise and at twelve o'clock by a detachment of the Newport Artillery Company, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Sherman. The bells were rung at sunrise, as well as during the moving of the procession and in the afternoon. The day was pleasant and cool; and no accident occurred. All went merry as a marriage bell, and when night came the universal sentiment was, that Newport had celebrated the day with all possible honor and enthusiasm.

At nine o'clock in the morning, a large number assembled on the Parade opposite the Perry House to witness the presentation of the life-boat to Miss Ida Lewis, as a token of regard for her services in saving human life. She has rescued from a watery grave eleven persons during the past ten years—these several feats have been performed during cold days in winter, severe gales, and upon one occasion during a cold stormy night. The boat was mounted on wheels, and is fourteen feet in length, painted pure white, finished with gilt mouldings with carved black walnut cockswain, with the name Rescue cut in satinwood. She is handsomely cushioned with red leather cushions, and carpeted with Brussels carpeting, and has air-tight compartments. Hon. Francis Brinley made the presentation speech, after which Hon. W. P. Sheffield, in behalf of the Narragansett Boat Club, presented a very fine yoke, with silver socket and silver plate, bearing inscription. Captain Kenney, pilot of the New York steamer "Newport," also presented two very beautiful silk flags, a gift from the officers of that boat. Miss Lewis gracefully accepted these offerings, and Colonel T. W. Higginson replied in her behalf. At three o'clock, large crowds assembled at Long wharf and on the adjoining docks to witness the launching of "Ida Lewis' boat" and her skill in rowing to her home in the harbor. The water was covered with boats of all sizes and descriptions, filled with people, and loud cheers went up as she stepped into her boat and with an indescribable grace and ease took up her oars. Guns were fired from the yachts, and altogether it was an exciting scene. She glided over the water like a swan, and was eagerly watched and cheered by the multitude till lost sight of in the distance.

At ten o'clock precisely the procession formed, which was more than a mile long, comprising military, firemen with engines beautifully decorated, City Council and other officials in carriages, bands of music, &c., &c. The most interesting feature, however, was that of vehicles so arranged as to illustrate the several occupations of their owners.

NEWPORT.

If Newport were not, as it is, the most elegant and fashionable of all American watering-places, its topographical beauties—its ancient commercial importance, and its many interesting historical associations, would yet claim for it distinguished mention.

The incidents of that period have left some pleasant memories for the present day; remembrances of the fame of Commodore Perry, who was born in Narragansett, across the bay, and whose remains now rest in Newport; of the residence of Rochambeau, and other brave officers of the French fleet; and of the visits of General Washington, and the fêtes given in his honor.

Of late years Newport has grown to be a great summer residence. A new city of charming villas and sumptuous mansions has sprung up, extending far along upon the terraces which overlook the sea. Population near 15,000. Thousands now assemble at Newport every year; and during their stay, one great source of pleasure is to visit the most inviting scenes, and the spots rendered interesting by their historical associations.

The chief picturesque attractions of the place are the fine ocean shores, known as the First, Second and Third Beach. The First Beach is chiefly used as a bathing ground by visitors. At the Second Beach are the famous rocks called Purgatory and the Hanging Rocks, within whose shadows, it is said, the celebrated Bishop Berkeley wrote his "Minute Philosopher." Nearer to the city, and upon the coast, is the great Spouting Cave. The Glen and other localities are charming places to ride to.

H. W. PRAY, 164 Thames St. Clocks, Watches, Jewelry, Fans, &c. Repairing done in the best manner.

Among the venerable buildings still to be seen, are the ancient State House (Newport being a semi-capital of Rhode Island); the Redwood Library, erected in 1748 (among its collections are eighty-four large volumes presented by William the Fourth, King of England); Tammany Hall Institute; Trinity Church, dating back to 1726; the Vernon Family Mansion, 13 Clarke street; Com. Perry's House, 9 Washington square; the City Hall, a brick building erected in 1763; the fortifications in the harbor, and the "Old Stone Mill," a relic of a period past remembrance, and which has caused much speculation. It is claimed, by an author of a work published in Denmark, to have been erected by Northmen, who, it is supposed, discovered this continent anterior to Columbus, in the twelfth century. On the other hand, 'tis said the mill was erected about two hundred years ago, and belonged to Governor Benedict Arnold. In his will he calls it "my stone-built wind-mill," and in his son-in-law's will (Edward Pelham), dated May, 1741, mention is also made of it, as though it had been built in Governor Arnold's time. The dimensions of this curious structure is nearly twenty-five feet in height, its diameter on the outside is twenty-three feet, and inside eighteen feet nine inches. It is circular and supported upon eight arches, resting upon thick columns about ten feet high. The height of the center of the arches from the ground is twelve feet six inches, and the foundation extends to the depth of five feet. It is built of small pieces of stone firmly put together with a very hard cement or mortar.

"Now thou standest
In faded majesty, as if to mourn
The desolation of an ancient race."

Newport was the birthplace of the gifted miniature painter Malbone; and Gilbert Stuart's place of nativity may be seen in Narragansett, across the bay. Stuart made two copies of his great Washington picture for Rhode Island—one can be seen in the State House at Newport, the other in that at Providence. His daughter, Miss Jane Stuart, an artist of much skill, resides in Newport.

Franklin's Printing Press, which his brother James imported in 1720, was, until 1862, in the office of the Newport Mercury, a paper established in 1758, by James Franklin, and which is still published by F. A. Pratt. The press was kept and honored as the one on which the great Benjamin worked when learning his trade. It is now in Boston.

The Old Chair of State, in which Gov. Benedict Arnold sat at the reception of the charter in 1663, when it was proclaimed in the presence of all the freemen of the colony, at Newport, is in the possession of the Gould family.

In 1768, the ship "Endeavor," commanded by Capt. James Cook, sailed from England for the south seas, having on board Sir Joseph Banks, etc., for the purpose of observing the transit of Venus over the Sun's disk, which took place on the 4th of June, 1769.

The "Endeavor," subsequently became engaged in the whaling business. In consequence of the war between England and this country, she put into Newport, was condemned, sold and broken up. William Gilpin, Esq., on Thames street, has in his office the crown taken from her stern. Joshua Sayer, Esq., has a piece of wood about five feet in length taken from her.

Take it all in all, Newport is one of the most interesting and "enjoyably beautiful" places that the tourist can visit—fine hotels, beautiful drives, excellent bathing; and anything in the shopping line can be got; for directions to which see our advertising department of the Directory.
